About our Future Leaders Program

ofi's FLP is 12 months structured experiential development program that will test your initiative, stimulate your ambition and creativity, and demand your energy and intellect.

You will gain significant business exposure and networks, perspective, and the edge you need to have a high-impact career.

Be the change for good food and a healthy future.

Combine passion with purpose

Working with a global company, renowned for leveraging global sourcing network and on the ground, intel offering a safe, secure supply of traceable and sustainable ingredients.

Diverse exposure

Initial 5-6 months involves detailed exposure across the full value chain covering regional footprint and businesses. This will help you to broaden perspective through field exposure in each aspect of ofi's value chain and develop deep knowledge and skills in related function within the context of BU/Region.

Project ownership in live business environment

The program offers you the opportunity to apply your learnings by driving two high-impact, commercial projects.

High-impact management role

After 12 months, you will be placed in a front-line, management role which will fuel your aspirations and ambitions.

Build a winning career

Enjoy empowered roles early in your career and rich experiences in complex fast-changing, high-growth business environments.

What inspires me is the commitment to sustainability; how in all the decisions we make, we always balance economic, social and environmental factors, and how we want to become pioneers in re-imagining global agriculture and making it a fair system for everyone involved.

Rocio Torress
Iese Business School (FLP 2018) ”

Consumers want traceability and sustainability

So we're constantly increasing volumes of traceable ingredients, working closely with farmers to improve supply chain data.
